Molecular scientists and biochemists are at the forefront of new scientific discoveries related to drugs, biofuels, and food production. They study cellular processes, molecular structure, genetic mechanisms, and the molecular processes through which biological functions are carried out; they advance the understanding of the structural properties of proteins and their development and expression, focusing on protein's effects on biological responses, and protein and cellular interactions.

This list reaches researchers and investigators in

- Proteomics
- Protein chemistry and structure
- Protein synthesis
- Drug Discovery
- Molecular and cellular biology
- Molecular Genetics
- Systems Biology
- Peptides
- Genomics
- Cell-signaling

Suggested usage: marketers of lab equipment, antibodies, tissue cultures, and other materials.
